From: Consulado Geral de Portugal em Goa <consulado.goa@mne.pt>

Dear Ma'am

In reference to your e-mail, hereunder transcribed, you are informed that the registering authority that carries out the registration/transcription of births (that has the effects of acquisition, maintenance or attribution of nationality) is the Conservatória dos Registos Centrais, in Lisbon, and not this Consulate-General. You may contact the said central authority to check the status of your processes if any.

In connection with any pending requests of verification of documents, as the case may be, you are informed that the task of verification of certificates with the local authorities in Bombay, Índia, as entrusted by the central authorities in Portugal, are conducted in a sequential order for all requests received including the sending of reminders. Upon receipt of the responses from the local authorities, the same are then remitted to the central authority in Portugal for their consideration, again, as per their order of sequence.

You are further informed that the verification processes may suffer delays caused due to lack of or inadequacy in the responses from the local authorities in Bombay and the non-remittance of certificates to consular requests, as well as due to the overwhelming number of nationality applications being processed by the central authority in Portugal creating a situation which is beyond the control of the services of this Consulate-General.

You are finally informed that the specifics of the verification processes are of confidential nature, and as such these processes cannot have any intervention of the applicants or third parties.

Best regards
